INTRODUCTION

One of the richest sources of mid to late nineteenth century botanical, geographical and medical information exists in the hundreds of letters, manuscripts, papers and books written by Ferdinand Jacob Heinrich Mueller. It is therefore surprising that more than 80 years elapsed before the compilation of a complete and accurate bibliography could be undertaken to provide a key with which to explore the life and scientific accomplishments of Mueller's heritage.

The need for a bibliography was recognised by Mueller, as early as 1884, when he directed the executors of his will to issue "not less than 500 printed copies to be prepared also on my expense of a collection or rather selection of favourable articles on the Melbourne Botanic Garden, such as appeared in the metropolitan journals here, the transcription being ready at my residence". Maiden in 1897 (p. 41) was the first to provide a brief for a bibliography of Mueller, and in 1912 (p. 8) he repeated the need for such a work.

The reasons why a list of publications was never completed and printed range from the impoverished circumstances in which Mueller was housed and worked, through the culpable actions of the executors of the estate, to the protracted action through the Crown Solicitor, which led to the final recovery, in June 1909, by A. J. Ewart (Government Botanist, 1906–1920) of 3,000 volumes missing from the Herbarium Library.

The only attempt that was ever made to prepare a selection of Mueller's work is an inaccurate, undated, handwritten list by an unknown author. The paper on which it was written contains conspicuous water marks dated 1883, and an index of these entries in W. Potter's handwriting. Potter was an executor of Mueller's estate and died in 1908 during a stay of proceedings by the Crown Solicitor who was trying to recover Victorian Government property in Potter's possession. From the handwriting, omissions, errors of spelling and transcription of titles, it is apparent that the author had no knowledge of German, and the entries were not the work of either of Mueller's assistants, J. G. Luehmann or Charles French. Dates of newspaper articles are often wrong and could be the result of compiling the work from Mueller's official correspondence files instead of sighted publications.

It seems unlikely that the work was undertaken under Mueller's supervision and may have been written after his death in 1896. In the intervening years this work has misleadingly been referred to as "Potter's catalogue", and was the only source of bibliographic information that was available, copied and widely distributed.

This is the first of three papers that attempt to provide a definitive bibliography of Mueller's published work. The second paper will provide an index to all plant names of taxonomic significance referred to by Mueller (new species, new names and new combinations). The third paper will be compiled, as a supplement to the first two papers, from additional information that comes to hand over the next five years. A list of the unpublished letters and manuscripts may also be included in the third paper.

In reading the work of Mueller it is difficult to avoid commenting on the man and his science. However, biographical information has been restricted to an abridged statement of events listed in chronological order that may help guide the reader who is not familiar with the content of the biographical literature which is listed.

It is common practice today to analyse (for funding purposes) the amount of information published by a scientist, in terms of the number of papers and pages published. Mueller's record is given in figure 1 and it is interesting to note that apart from periods in which the rate of publication changed (at ages 35, 55, and 63) the most substantial short-term fluctuation in the numbers of papers published occurred between 1861 and 1864, a period in which he courted, became engaged to and broke off his engagement with Euphemia Henderson. The number of papers published during this period decreased noticeably.

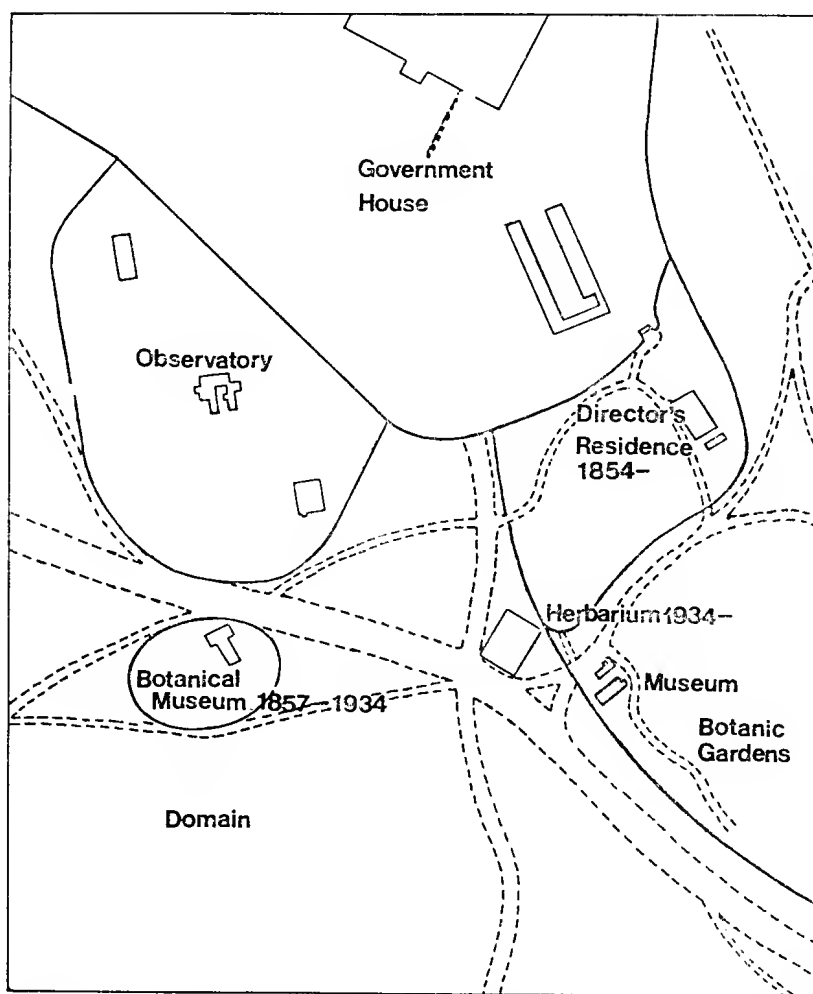

Fig. 2. Plan of the Director's residence* built in 1854 and Botanical Museum (the first Melbourne herbarium) in relation to the second herbarium. Mueller vacated the residence when he was forced to relinquish the responsibilities of the Director of the Botanic Gardens in 1873. (*Classified by the National Trust in 1978).

Fig. 3. Plan of Mueller's Botanic Garden which accompanied his Annual Report for 1864/65. The most striking design features are the network of paths, geometric arrangement of beds, and long radius of curvature of the lake margins. None of these features survived Guilfoyle's remodelling, but many of the conifers on the western side remain intact.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The main source of material for this paper comes from the library of the Royal Botanic Gardens and National Herbarium of Victoria, and other State Government libraries in Melbourne. Mr. M. A. C. Stidston, Librarian, and Miss H. Alexander who was engaged to assist with this project, serviced the recovery, photocopying and processing of the information assembled by the authors. Without their assistance this work would not have been possible.

Other contributors who assisted by assiduously and enthusiastically tracing and recovering copies of documentary material, or who assisted in other ways mentioned, include:

Arnold Arboretum, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A. Ms L. M. Dickinson, Librarian, supplied photocopies of articles and information concerning manuscript material.

Australian Botanical Liaison Officer in London. Dr Andrew Kanis, supplied photocopies and checked out references.

J. S. Battye Library, Perth. Ms M. Medcalf, supplied references to material in Western Australian newspapers, and copies of articles, biographical and manuscript material.

Bernice P. Bishop Museum, Honolulu, Hawaii. Ms M. K. Ashford, Librarian, supplied photocopies.

Bibliothèque du Conservatoire botanique, Geneva, Switzerland. Mr. H. M. Burdet photocopied catalogue cards in response to our appeal in Taxon, supplied articles requested, and checked runs of several journals.

Botanischer Garten and Botanisches Museum Berlin-Dahlem, Germany. Dr H. W. Lack, supplied photocopies, catalogue cards and articles requested.

Botanisches Institut der Universität Kiel, Germany, provided a photocopy of an 1843 F. Mueller manuscript.

British Library, Lending Division, Wetherby, Yorkshire, U.K., supplied photocopies.

Mr A. E. Brooks, Sandringham, Victoria; Mr C. K. Ingram, Mt. Jonah near Bilpin, N.S.W.; Mr A. Parkin, Ivanhoe, Victoria and Mr J. Ros Garnet, 23 Camdon St., Pascoe Vale, Victoria, let us know of publications in their private possession, in response to our appeal in the Victorian Naturalist.

California State Library, Sacramento, California, U.S.A. Mr Thomas M. Fante, supplied photocopies of an F. Mueller article.

CO-AS-IT (Comitate Assistenza Italiana), Melbourne. Mr Martini and Mr and Mrs S. Bella, translated papers in Italian science journals.

C.S.I.R.O., Herbarium Australiense, Canberra. Mr Arthur Chapman, supplied references to publications.

Department of Agriculture, Perth. Miss J. E. Maughan, Librarian, supplied photocopies and scanned runs of a journal for F. Mueller material.

Forests Department, Perth. Ms J. A. O'Neill, Librarian, supplied photocopies.

Galbraith, Miss Jean, Tyers, Victoria, made available pages of issues of Vol. 1 of the Victorian Naturalist from her private unbound copies.

Gray Herbarium Library, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A. Mark J. Belson, supplied photocopies of articles and Mueller's letters to Asa Gray, as well as references to other Mueller ms. material in U.S.A.

- Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa., U.S.A. Dr Gilbert S. Daniels, Director, provided photocopies of manuscript material.
- Iowa State University Library, Ames, Iowa, U.S.A. Photocopies were supplied by the librarian.
- Istituto Centrale per il Catalogo Unico delle Biblioteche Italiane e per le Informazioni Bibliografiche, Rome, Italy. A. Vinay, supplied a list of institutes and libraries in Italy, where we might get further assistance.
- The Mauritius Institute, Port Louis, Mauritius. Mr S. Jean-François, Head Librarian, supplied photocopies.
- Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis, Missouri, U.S.A. Ms Carla Lange, Assistant Librarian, in response to an appeal in Taxon, supplied photocopies of library catalogue entries and of articles subsequently requested.
- Mitchell Library, Sydney. Miss Jean Dyce, Assistant Librarian, supplied photocopies.
- National Herbarium of Victoria, Melbourne. Mr Rex Filson provided considerable editorial assistance with the manuscript. Dr. Paul Gullan contributed generously with his time and skills in producing a computer program for indexing and cross-referencing the entire bibliography. Miss Anita Podwyszynski drafted figures one and two. Mrs Glenys Bray typed the manuscript.
- National Museum of Victoria. Mr John McNally, for access to library.
- Naturhistorisches Museum, Lübeck, Germany. Dr M. Diehl, supplied a photocopy of an 1844 manuscript.
- Pearson, Miss Daphne, Marne Street, South Yarra, supplied references to publications.
- Queensland Herbarium, Brisbane. Mr. Selwyn Everist supplied photocopies of reprints in the herbarium library.
- Radio Ethnic Australia, Station 3EA. Mr Walter Schaeuble, provided broadcasting time for two interviews, in English and in German, and supplied a list of names of possible contacts that might lead to F. Mueller material.
- Royal Historical Society of Victoria. Mrs E. Pullin, President, gave permission to reproduce a blotting paper sketch of F. Mueller and access to library and manuscript collections.
- Royal Society of Victoria, Melbourne. Dr R. R. Garran, for loan of journals and photocopies.
- Schleswig-Holsteinsche Landesbibliothek, Kiel, West Germany. Dr Hans F. Rothert, supplied photocopies of manuscripts.
- State Archives, Honolulu, Hawaii. Miss Agnes C. Conrad, State Archivist, helped in the search for and locating of a rare publication at the Bernice P. Bishop Museum and supplied photocopies.
- State Library of South Australia, Adelaide. Mr T. H. Love, Principal Archivist, photocopied manuscripts and the catalogue cards for them.
- The State Library of Victoria, including the La Trobe Library, Melbourne. Mr R. E. A. Anderson for access to library, photocopying, and general assistance. Staff, and especially Mr Ken Fraser, Mr Joe Bedford and Mr John Arnold, for helpful advice and assistance beyond the normal call of duty.
- The "Tivoli" German Club, Melbourne, gave permission to search through their library and files.

Univ. Botaniske Museum, Copenhagen, Denmark. Mr A. Hansen, photocopied a bibliography to the local flora referring to F. Mueller manuscripts in Kiel and in Lübeck.

University of Papua–New Guinea. Dr David Frodin, sent corrected copy of his bibliography “Muelleriana Papuasica”.

Victorian College of Pharmacy, Melbourne. Miss Murphy and Mr Williams, Librarian, for loan of journals, photocopies, general access to library.

Victorian Parliamentary Library, Melbourne. Miss McGovern, Librarian, allowed access to library and provided photocopies.

Victorian Plant Research Institute, Burnley. Mr Geoff Shaw, Librarian, for access to library and loan of journals.

Wannenmacher, Dr Roland, Vienna, Austria, checked journals and supplied photocopies of F. Mueller articles.

The work was financed by grants to the two senior authors from the Australian Biological Resources Study through the years 1974–1977.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

The following biographical notes have been compiled from various sources.

Father

Friedrich Müller, formerly in the Prussian Army, then Customs Officer in Rostock (on the Baltic Sea in East Germany).

Mother

Louise, née Mertens, from Tönning (near the German–Danish border).

Parents' marriage

10th August 1822.

Parents' children

Iwanne (born ?); Ferdinand (born 1825); Bertha (born about 1826); Clara (born about 1833).

1825, 30th June

Ferdinand Jacob Heinrich Müller, born in Rostock.

1835

father Friedrich Müller died of tuberculosis.

1836

the widowed Louise Müller returned home to Tönning with her children.

1840

Ferdinand apprenticed to E. G. Becker, pharmacist in Husum, Schleswig-Holstein, Northern Germany (later in his training he apparently attended lectures at Kiel University from here).

later in the year his mother died in Tönning of tuberculosis.

his older sister Iwanne died of tuberculosis.

he completed his unpublished “Husum's phanerogamische Flora 1843” (the original manuscript is still at Kiel University) which formed the basis of his Flora of Schleswig-Holstein (Breviarum plantarum Ducatus Slesvicensis austro-occidentalis, was not published until 1853).

1846

he received his pharmacist's degree from Kiel University. A little later in the same year he submitted his Ph.D. thesis on Capsella bursa-pastoris at the same university.

1846–47

his health and that of his sister Bertha gave cause for concern, as they, too, seemed to show the first signs of tuberculosis. Doctors advised a sea-voyage to a warmer climate.

a visit from a family friend, Dr. Ludwig Preiss, who had just returned from Western Australia, led him to take his two sisters on a trip to South Australia.

1847, July

Ferdinand, then 22, Bertha aged 21, and Clara aged 14 sailed from Bremen for Australia in the "Hermann von Beckerath". During a week at anchor at Rio de Janeiro, he observed and collected plants. A small notebook (at the Melbourne Herbarium) contains notes on these short botanical excursions in the areas surrounding the city.

1847, 15 December

arrived in Adelaide. Ferdinand at once took a position as assistant at the Rundle Street chemist's shop of Moritz Heuzenroeder, whose brother had come out from Germany on the same boat as the Müllers.

1848–50

in his spare time he explored first the closer vicinity of Adelaide, gradually widened his field of exploration and botanical collecting (coastal areas of Guichen Bay; Mt. Lofty Range; later the Murray scrub and the almost unknown Flinders Range, including Mt. Brown and Mt. Arden; the country around Lake Torrens).

1848, December

his friend from his university days in Kiel, Krichauff, arrived from Germany. On Christmas Eve they acquired 20 acres of land in the Bugle Ranges, between Strathalbyn and Mt. Barker, and built a small house there, where Ferdinand lived for some months with his sister Clara as housekeeper. Not finding a farmer's life much to his liking, however, he returned to Adelaide and his former employment in the Rundle Street chemist shop.

1852, Late

he had by now changed the spelling of his name from Müller to Mueller. He moved to Victoria with the intention of opening a chemist's shop in the goldfields. At this time Governor La Trobe decided to create a position for a Government Botanist for Victoria, and Mueller applied for the position.

1853, 28 January

Mueller was appointed the first Government Botanist for Victoria.

1853, Early

only a few weeks later he set out on his first Victorian exploration to the unexplored Buffalo Mts., Mt. Buller, Goulburn River, to Kinglake, Plenty Ranges, around the Dividing Ranges to the La Trobe River, finally reaching the coast near Port Albert, to Wilson's Promontory and through the Gippsland coastal areas back to Melbourne (1500 miles). After his return from this trip his sisters, Bertha and Clara, joined him in Melbourne.

1853, 27 October

Clara married Dr. Wehl and they went to live at Mt. Gambier, where Bertha stayed with them till her own marriage in 1856 to George Doughty. Bertha then lived with her husband on his cattle station near Portland, south-western Victoria.

1853, November

Mueller set out on his second Victorian exploration. This led westward to the Grampians, north along the Avoca River, north-west past Mildura, then back south-east along the Murray River to Albury, along the Mitta-Mitta River, across the Gibbo Range, to Omeo, to near the New South Wales border, east to the Snowy River, west to the Tambo River, back to the Snowy River, for some distance along the Buchan River, then across Gippsland, arriving back in Melbourne in April 1854 (2500 miles in  $5\frac{1}{2}$  months).

Melbourne was visited by the famous algologist Dr. W. H. Harvey from Dublin, who stayed with Mueller for some time, and presented him with a set of his collections.

1854, November

Mueller's third Victorian exploration went through the Dandenong Ranges, along the La Trobe River, to the River Avon, to Mt. Wellington, to Omeo, north-east to Mt. Kosciusko, the Snowy Mountains, back to the Buchan River, to the Cabbage-Tree Creek area, to Lake King and again across Gippsland and back to Melbourne early in 1855.

1855, July

Mueller arrived in Sydney to join the Gregory Expedition, to which he was appointed as botanist, having been granted 18 months leave of absence without pay by the Victorian Government. He collected during his few days in Sydney, before the party sailed for Queensland. He also collected during a brief stop at Moreton Bay, and on some islands along the coast during the voyage through the inner passage along the Barrier Reef (off Cape Bedford, the Howick Group, Cairncross and Albany Islands). The party landed at the mouth of the Victoria River. They travelled across northern Australia, through the Northern Territory into north-western Australia and back again, returning to the settlement on the Dawson River in late November 1856 (5000 miles in 16 months).

1856, late November at the end of the Gregory Expedition Mueller went on a short exploration with Walter Hill, curator of the Brisbane Botanic Gardens. This took in the Glasshouse Mountains. He returned to Melbourne and his duties as Government Botanist in January 1857.

1857, 13 August

Mueller was appointed as the first Director of the Melbourne Botanic Gardens, following his appointment as Director of the Zoologic Gardens a week earlier, in addition to his post as Government Botanist.

1857, 7 November

the Rostock University in Germany conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Medicine honoris causa.

1859

Mueller was elected President of the Philosophical Institute (from January 1860 the Royal Society) of Victoria.

1860, September

a short exploring trip, across the country from Twofold Bay to the Genoa River, down the river to the coast, to Cape Howe, up the Genoa River to the adjacent highlands and the Nungatta Mountains.

1860, December

exploration of the Australian Alps. He spent Christmas camping on the Baw-Baws, returning to Melbourne early in January 1861.

1861, March

a second visit to Mt. Wellington and the sources of the Macalister River.

Plate 3

A view of the lagoon from the western end, showing the fountain referred to in Mueller's 1868 annual report. Photo Royal Botanic Gardens collection.

1863, March

Mueller became engaged to Miss Euphemia Henderson of Phillip Island. The engagement broke off a few months later in August 1863 because ill-health renewed his life-long fear of tuberculosis.

1867, October

he made a holiday voyage to Western Australia, where he disembarked at King George Sound. He explored and collected plants in this vicinity and also collected in the Stirling Ranges.

1867, 20 December

he was raised to hereditary Barony by the King of Württemberg (date shown on certificate). He must have known of this by 14th September 1868, as he signed his "Report of the Government Botanist and Director of the Botanic Gardens" of that date with Ferdinand von Mueller.

1869, early

he spent one week in Tasmania.

1869, November

(short notice in the Melbourne Argus of 4th November) "Mr. Ferguson has received official notification of his appointment as curator of the Botanic Gardens and Inspector of State Forests, and has already entered upon the duties of his position. Dr. von Mueller retains his office of Government Botanist, and has control of the 'class' reserves and botanical collections".

1873, June

Mueller's position as Director of the Botanic Gardens was officially abolished. William Guilfoyle was appointed curator of the Gardens, and took up his duties on 21st July. A short time later Guilfoyle's official title was changed to "Director of Botanic Gardens, Government House Gardens and Domains".

1874-75

various short collecting trips around Victoria were made.

1875, 27 January-14 February another visit to Tasmania (Circular Heads, Arthur River).

1876, February

Dr. Wehl, husband of his sister Clara, died of hydatids, and Mueller spent a short time at Mt. Gambier to help arrange the affairs of his sister and her young family.

1877, October

Mueller made another visit to Western Australia, first to Champion Bay, then on to the Murchison River districts and to Shark Bay, returning to Perth in late November, where he spent some time as guest of John Forrest. Early in December he was granted one month's extension to his leave by the Victorian Government. During December Mueller explored between Perth and Geographie Bay, especially with a view to forest resources, then on to Bunbury and Albany. He returned to Melbourne early in 1878.

The "Melbourne Herbarium" (1910) built for £1,000 in 1857, four years after Mueller's appointment as Government botanist. This building, extended in 1883, continued in use until 1934 when the second herbarium still in use was built in the Royal Botanic Gardens. Photo Royal Botanic Gardens collection.

- 1879
Mueller received the K.C.M.G. (Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George).
- 1880
he was appointed one of the Vice-Presidents at the first Melbourne Social Science Congress (held in conjunction with the International Exhibition), in charge of the rural section (Agriculture, Horticulture, Forestry).
- 1890
he was elected President of the newly-formed Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science.
- 1891, 15–22 January
his first and only visit to New Zealand for the Congress of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, which he opened with a lengthy presidential address. He returned to Melbourne on 30th January 1891.
- 1895, January
Mueller attended the sixth meeting of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science in Brisbane, and as President of the Geographical Section delivered one of his addresses.
- 1896, 24 September
he had his first stroke, which must have disabled him: letters from him after this date are dictated and only signed by him in a very shaky hand.
- 1896, 10 October
he died of “apoplexy”.

Fig. 6. Mueller's description of Areca alicae written in german script above and latin below. This manuscript, dated Easter 1879, was published in Germany (79.13.03) within the year.

Mueller (88.08.01) commenced plant collecting in 1840 and in Australia from 1847. From 1847 until 1853 he collected entirely at his own expense. His private collections were presented to the public herbarium which was built in 1857 and held 45,000 specimens (Plate 4). By 1888 the size of the collection in the herbarium had grown to about 500,000 sheets. Donations of pressed specimens were distributed to herbaria in all countries, and to teaching institutions within Victoria.

His specimens were not numbered but his handwriting and labels are easily identified. Examples of these are reproduced in figures 4 to 6. However not all specimens with Mueller's labels and handwriting were collected by him, as many specimens were sent to him from all parts of Australia and overseas by both professional and amateur collectors, and Mueller wrote the relevant information onto the labels.

Fig. 5. Herbarium labels written by Mueller at different periods. Top, from an early German collection. Second, 1869. Lower two, 1896. His writing gradually increased in size with age.

INDEX OF SUBJECTS

In this index general references to plants come first, followed by geographic headings. References to Australia which do not mention the states are indexed under the heading "Australia". References to Australian dependencies and states follow this heading. References to countries other than Australia are next, and finally there are several miscellaneous headings.

The Index lists, in chronological order, the reference numbers (which are identical to those cited in the Bibliography) that contain information relevant to the heading under which they appear.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

EXPLANATION

The bibliography consists of references to published works, arranged in chronological order of publication.

Each entry is prefixed by a code consisting of three pairs of numbers (eg. 85.10.04). The first two numbers indicate the nineteenth century year of publication (eg. 85=1885). The second pair of numbers range from .01 to .14, in which the numbers .01 to .12 refer to the month of the year (.10=October); .13 is only used when the year but not the month is known; .14 is used to denote joint authorship, regardless of the order of the authors names. The last pair of numbers refers to the order in which the reference was compiled and inserted into the bibliography. It has no chronological significance, but does provide a unique number for purposes of indexing and cross-reference. The example given above refers to the fourth entry for October 1885.

The single exception to what has been stated is the entry 05.13.01. Here 05 refers to 1905, not 1805. The reference is to a Portuguese translation of Mueller's "Select extra-tropical plants" that was published posthumously.

Where publications were printed and issued in parts, each issue is listed as a separate entry according to its date of publication (eg. Fragmenta Phytographiae Australiae).

The names of journals are abbreviated in the bibliography, and an alphabetic list of these abbreviations with the full title is appended at the end. Abbreviations are based on those in Botanico Periodicum Huntianum (Hunt Botanical Library, 1968. Pittsburg P.A.). With one exception, all works cited in the bibliography have been seen by the authors, and either original material or copies (photo mechanical or micro-film) of these works are housed in the library of the Royal Botanic Gardens and National Herbarium of Victoria. The exception refers to reprints and/or translations issued outside Australia of the "Select Plants" (American, German and Portuguese editions). In those cases, only photocopies of the title pages were obtained.

In some cases Mueller sent articles in the form of an "extra print" to overseas journals for reprinting because the original publication was a shortlived, often obscure, Australian journal with no circulation abroad. At other times articles were reprinted on initiative of the editor. In all these cases, entries contain a cross-reference to other editions as far as this could be ascertained. The reference to the reprinting is given in square brackets at the end of the entries concerned.

The issue and distribution of "Extra Prints" to other journals, institutes and co-workers was a widespread, common practice during the nineteenth century. These "Extra-Prints" filled the role of the present day galley-proof, page-proof and pre-print, and were printed and issued months ahead of the intended publishing date printed on them. In some cases publication took place later than the date indicated. In other cases due to financial difficulties, the journal went out of circulation between the time the "Extra-Print" was printed and the projected date for publication. In the bibliography, entries of "Extra-Prints" that were distributed but not followed by publication in the journals, have been noted to draw attention to this fact.

In some cases the date on the title page of a publication is different to the date of issue. The latter date has been used in this bibliography.

There is no doubt that much more published material such as letters to editors, short notes, and reprints or extracts from F. Mueller exist in various newspapers and journals. Due to the high cost and time required, a systematic scanning of all likely Australian newspapers of the period was not undertaken. Furthermore, many overseas journals and newspapers are not available in Melbourne, or Australia. The value of this bibliography will be greatly enhanced by anyone able to supply us with additional material or references not included here. All new contributions will be published, with acknowledgements, in the proposed supplement in five years. Information leading to F. Mueller manuscript material is also very welcome.

No copies of the references to publications in Australian newspapers listed below exist in Australian libraries today. These references were obtained from various published and unpublished sources, and their accuracy cannot be guaranteed:

- 1849 Mueller, F. [Letter?, re a search for Leichhardt] (ref. in 82.13.09 [translated]: "... my correspondence concerning a search for Leichhardt began as early as 1849 ... and was published already then together with Sir Thomas' [Mitchell] kind reply in Adelaide newspapers.")
